

Screen design.

I will explain the onboarding flow as I paste the screenshots.

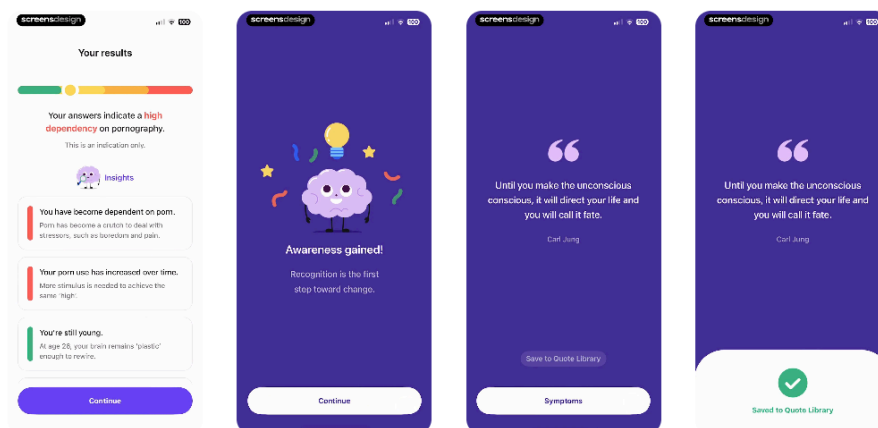

This is from another app. Take inspiration from all these screenshots and how the onboarding flow works. First screen is a logo. Second screen is a welcome screen. Third and 4th screen is a simple 'facts' screen about our app while 'preparing for quiz' is displayed at the bottom.

Then there is a quiz with 9 to 10 questions, each in 1 screen. Do the same for our app. Questions pertaining to our app.

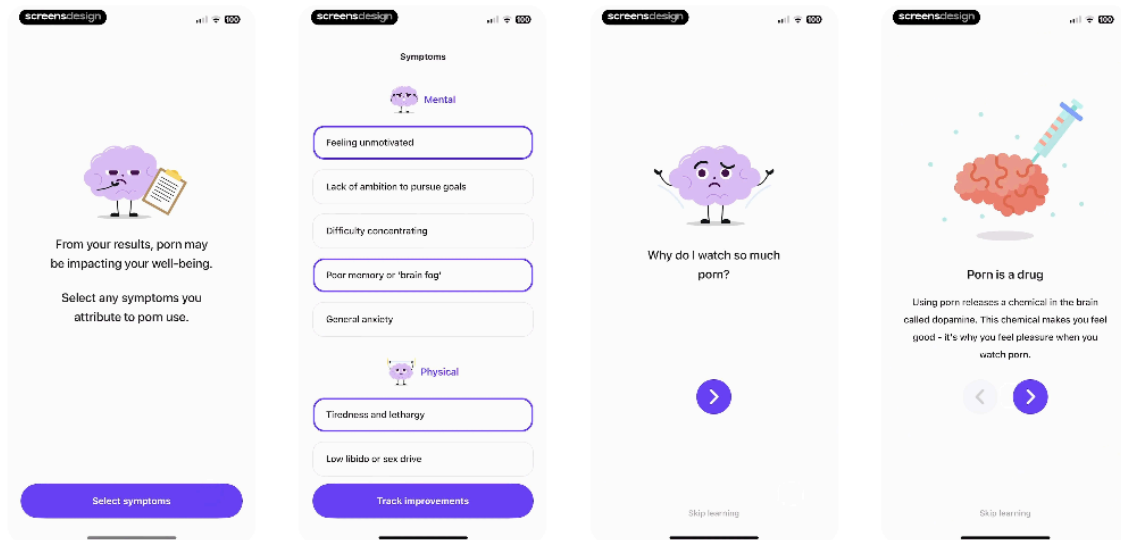

1. How much do you spend on delivery per week (with multiple options).
2. How many times do you order in a week (scrollable creative ui wheel).
3. Main reason for ordering delivery
4. Age
5. Would you say the food you order is healthy, unhealthy, or a mix of both.
- 6 to 9 - add 4 more questions to make the person dive deep into their habits and understand how much money and health they are wasting.

After the quiz there are 2 screens with fun facts about something to do w our app (preparing your results) in the bottom.

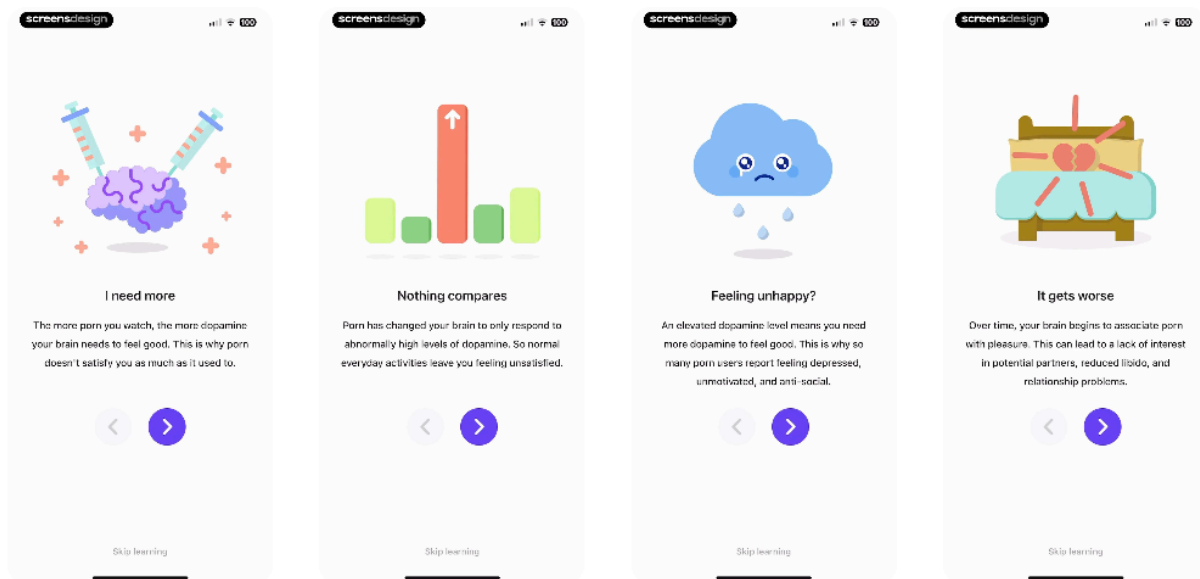

Then the results screen.

Then 2 screens acknowledging the fact that the user has taken their first steps.

Then a screen asking user to select symptoms like above (first screen in above screenshot)

Then a screen where user selects symptoms (take inspiration from second screen in above screenshot).

then 4 screens, each with one consequences of ordering food and spending money ordering food a lot (like above take inspiration).

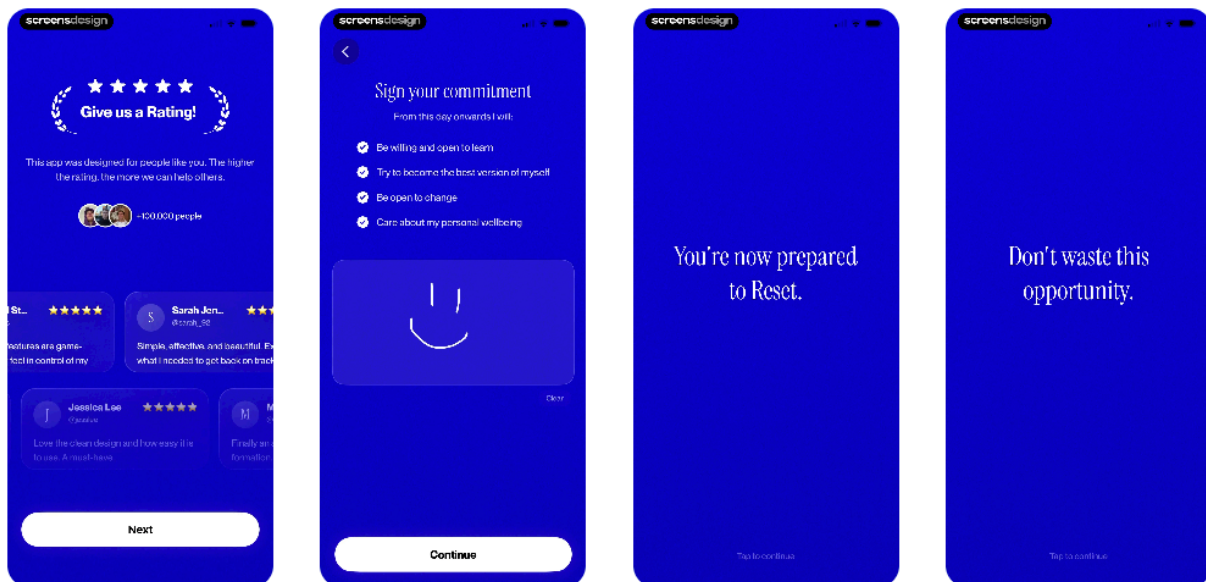

then a screen asking us what we should call the user with continue button.

Then a screen asking user to enter their weekly / monthly budget.

then 3 screens talking about how our app helps with their problem (ordering too much delivery food)

then a screen that asks permission to allow app blocking

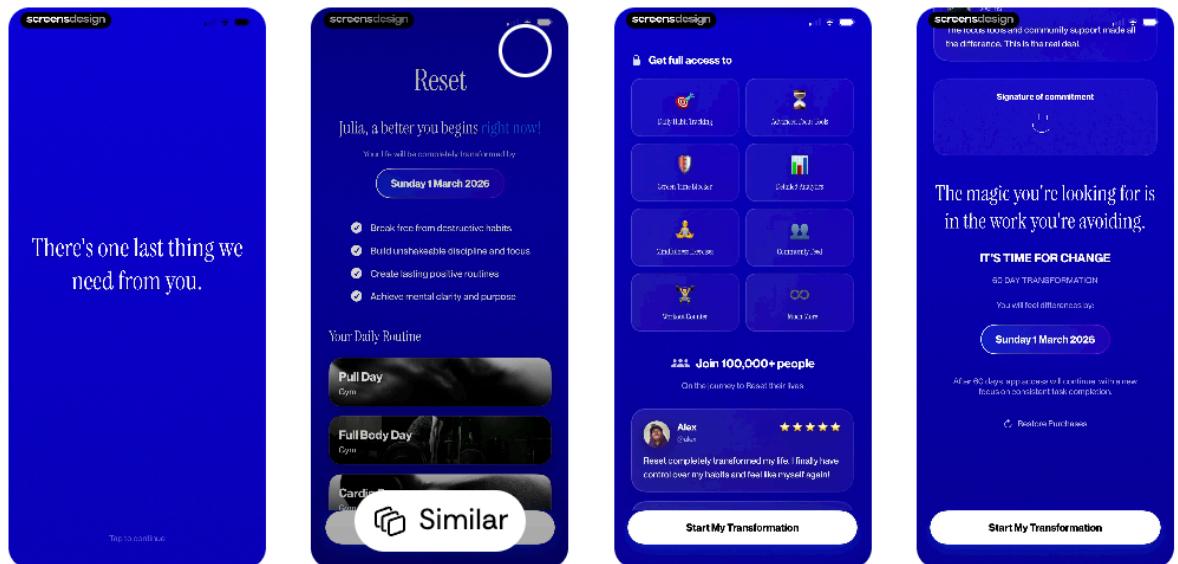

Then a screen that asks users if they want to enable notifications for - daily budget reminders, cooking ideas before meal times.

then a screen asking for rating / review (first pic above)

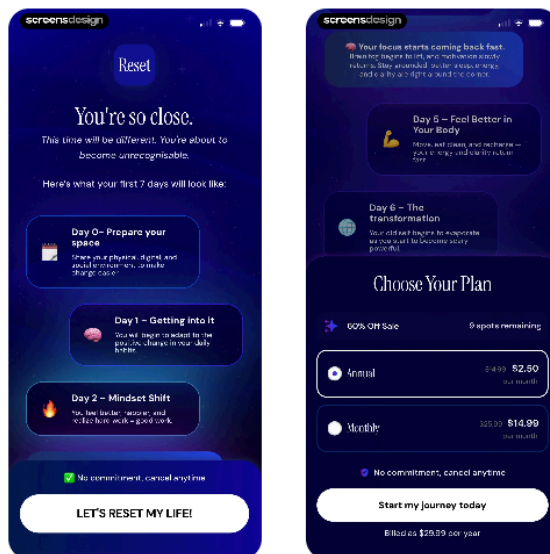

Then a screen asking for sign your commitment (like 2nd pic above)

Then 2 screens saying motivational stuff (like last 2 pics in above sc)

Then a screen saying we need one last thing from you (like above sc)

then 2 screens similar to last 2 pics in above sc

Then 1 last screen that reveals the paywall (like last pic in above sc).
